To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to apply for a construction management engineer position in Bangkok, Thailand. I recently graduated with a Bachelor's in Civil Engineering at Georgia Institute of Technology. Real estate development or property management is a combination of my background in construction and enthusiasm in business development particularly in high-rise projects.

Through my academic background in engineering and extracurricular internships in business, I had the opportunity to apply different competencies to multiple settings. These various experiences coupled with my passions in real estate development and construction management have driven me to become interested in exploring new possibilities at the forefront of industries. During my previous marketing internship, I learnt how real estate projects are serving customer demands with imagination and quality in their products. I started to develop my passion for project development after consulting internships to add value and implement technological solutions for my clients. From the aforementioned, I believe technical skills gained from years in engineering school are also equally important as the soft skills which only accumulate through working experience. I thrive to work with brilliant teammates to achieve a common goal. I assure you that I will contribute to back-and-forth learning curves through my years in the company in order to make the best solutions out of possibilities.

I truly appreciate the opportunity to discuss how my specific skills and abilities will contribute to your organization. Please let me know if I can provide you with any further information. Thank you for your kind consideration and hope to hear from you soon.

Your sincerely,
